10. Regarding surveys to students that are not directly related to educational material, like home life, physical/mental health, and gender identity, what comes closer to your view:

(Some/Other) people say that these surveys are important because they alert teachers to issues in the home and in students' lives, and allow them to provide resources to ensure students' mental and physical health.

...while...

(Some/Other) people say that these surveys are designed to push an agenda, overstepping school bounds and enabling schools and activists to indoctrinate or otherwise shape children in ways counter to their parents' wishes.

CONDUCTED: AUG 23-29, 2022

10. Regarding surveys to students that are not directly related to educational material, like home life, physical/mental health, and gender identity, what comes closer to your view:

(Some/Other) people say that these surveys are important because they alert teachers to issues in the home and in students' lives, and allow them to provide resources to ensure students' mental and physical health.

(Some/Other) people say that these surveys are designed to push an agenda, overstepping school bounds and enabling schools and activists to indoctrinate or otherwise shape children in ways counter to their parents' wishes.

13. The Family Education Rights and Privacy Act, or FERPA, is a federal law that protects the privacy of student education records, so only school officials and those with direct consent from parents can access student's information. Because FERPA does not apply to third parties that work with schools, third parties such as contractors and vendors can receive student data without permission from parents. Do you support or oppose allowing third-parties that work with schools to receive student data without permission from parents?
