We use ClassTag. And load the kids "guardian" with their e-mail or cell number. It is a website/app platform that messages and texts too.

Good morning, all! We had our first meeting today, and a record number of kids showed up. I am struggling, however, figuring out the best way to communicate with such a large group. I set up a Remind account so that I can text them, but some of the kids don't have phones. I talked about setting up a "class" in Google Classroom because that's what all of the teachers here are required to use, but some of the kids were worried about their parents having access.

What platforms do you use for club communication?

Thanks!
