Concept Definitions

Identity: Identity formation is a process by which we, as well as others, define our sense of membership and belonging. Identity consists of the chosen and assigned names we give ourselves and/or are given. Identity is connected to our history/histories. Our identities: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● are varied, multifaceted and dynamic</li> <li>● include belonging and membership in community</li> <li>● are relational, intersectional and socially constructed</li> </ul> Intersectionality: Originally coined by legal scholar Dr. Kimberlé Crenshaw as a prism to understand how inequalities persist, social categories like race, class, gender, sexuality, etc are best understood as overlapping and interlocking rather than isolated and distinct.	System: An organized way of doing something. In society, there are three types of systems that work together to cohere large numbers of people into a unified whole. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> Economic</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> Political</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> Social-Cultural</li> </ul> These systems channel power and can be oppressive or non-oppressive. Power: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> Power Over (dominating others)</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> Power To (ability of all people and groups to exert influence)</li> </ul>	Cultural Hegemony in the media: A concept originally coined by Italian scholar and activist Antonio Gramsci, cultural hegemony refers to the domination, or rule, achieved by ideological means. This infers that systems of power are reinforced via groups of people who can wield power and institutions (media, in this case) that may heavily influence the everyday thoughts, expectations and behaviors of the rest of society. When people submit to these hegemonic and ultimately dehumanizing norms, ideas and expectations, existing relationships of power remain unchanged. Counterhegemony in the media: The use of media to name and challenge existing power relationships, values, norms, systems and conditions that	Transformation: The liberatory process, through critical consciousness and agency, of uncovering, reclaiming, revaluing and maximizing the potential of one's humanity in opposition to oppression and dehumanization. Change: The act or instance of making or becoming different.

Narrative: A spoken or written account of connected events; a story from a particular point of view. Narratives: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● vary based on both teller and audience</li> <li>● serve a function</li> <li>● are experience based</li> <li>● are dynamic</li> <li>● communicate values</li> <li>● have power</li> </ul> Master narrative “Until the lions start writing their own stories, the hunters will always be the heroes.” -Kenyan and Zimbabwean proverb The account of events as told by those who are in power. The “official” history. It is shaped by the ruling classes’ identities and interests (i.e., class, race, gender, religious, et al) and marginalizes and/or silences points of view not in line with its own. Counter narrative Telling(s) of history from multiple points of view that expose and challenge the bias inherent in the master narrative, thereby enhancing our understanding of history.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>☐ Power With (strength based on mutual support and solidarity)</li> <li>☐ Power Within (a person’s capacity to imagine, have hope and preserve) and</li> <li>☐ Power For (the goal and impact of power)</li> </ul> Humanization &amp; Dehumanization The I’s of Oppression and Resistance <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Ideological</li> <li>● Institutional</li> <li>● Interpersonal</li> <li>● Internalized</li> </ul>	have been legitimized and promoted as natural and unchanging/unchangeable by structurally privileged classes in society.

Enduring Understandings
<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Knowledge and love of self is fundamental to individual and collective well-being. (New)</li> <li>2. Our own lives and experiences are important texts to study in further developing our love of who we are from where we come. (New)</li> <li>3. Our experiences, relationships, and histories shape our identities.</li> <li>4. Reflection on one’s individual and collective identities can be integral to placing one’s self in history as an agent of change.</li> <li>5. The master narrative can be a singular story (account of events) that marginalizes the experiences of oppressed groups by excluding their perspective.</li> <li>6. Counter narratives trouble the master narratives by painting more humanizing, multi-faceted, nuanced understandings of our individual and group experiences.</li> </ol>	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Recognition of our interconnectedness and ultimately developing solidarity can be an effective way to resist systems of oppression. (New)</li> <li>2. Identifying, visualizing, analyzing and challenging the systems impacting our lives is key to transforming them. (New)</li> <li>3. Power can be derived from the three fundamental types of systems shaping society.</li> <li>4. Systems and power can be used to dominate/oppress or liberate/resist.</li> <li>5. Systems of oppression can be dependent on multiple forms of oppression.</li> <li>6. Oppression can lead to resistance.</li> </ol>	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Historically, and in the present, counter narrative storytelling can be a humanizing process that uplifts our beauty and complexity while asserting the agency of marginalized people to define themselves. (New)</li> <li>2. Hegemony is established and maintained through systems and institutions of power.</li> <li>3. Hegemony works through dominant systems and institutions of power and can shape and reinforce stereotypes.</li> <li>4. Master narratives have the power to deny a group’s identity and agency.</li> </ol>	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Young people have historically been, and presently are, at the center of social movements to positively shape their present and future conditions. (New)</li> <li>2. Systems impact and shape people’s lives. In turn, people impact and can shape systems.</li> <li>3. Oppression and dehumanization can lead to resistance.</li> <li>4. Critical consciousness can empower people to take effective action against injustice in their community/ies.</li> <li>5. Examining the root causes of problems can lead to determining actions to “change or transform” those problems.</li> <li>6. Social movements can empower young people to act upon injustices and to transform their communities.</li> </ol>

Essential Questions

<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. How can examining experiences that have shaped our identities further develop our knowledge and love of self?</li> <li>2. How do relationships (to ideas, to institutions, to other people, to oneself) contribute to the shaping of our identity?</li> <li>3. What impact does the master narrative have on the experiences of historically marginalized people?</li> <li>4. How do race, ethnicity, nationality, and culture (among others) shape our personal identity?</li> </ol>	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. What are humanizing responses when confronted by systems of oppression that cause deep social, political, cultural and economic divides? (New)</li> <li>2. How do social, political, and economic systems channel power?</li> <li>3. How have people historically, and in the present, challenged systems of oppression?</li> <li>4. How can we identify and analyze the systems of power affecting our lived experience?</li> </ol>	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. If you had the power to share any message with the world, what message would that be? (New)</li> <li>2. How can researching, documenting and uplifting our families' and our communities' stories deepen our appreciation of who we are and who holds knowledge? (New)</li> <li>3. What narratives are the most commonly found in mass media and how do they impact youth?</li> <li>4. How have people used media platforms to resist cultural hegemony? (New)</li> <li>5. How have individuals, institutions, and systems sought to direct society to maintain the status quo?</li> </ol>	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. If you could change the world, what's one thing you would change? (New)</li> <li>2. What role have youth played, both now and in the past, in the transformation of themselves, their community and larger society? (New)</li> <li>3. What are the root causes of the injustices people face, both historically and in the present?</li> <li>4. How do systems impact people and how do people impact change in the system(s)?</li> </ol>

Core Skills (CCSS Literacy) 1st Semester

Core Skills (CCSS Literacy) 2nd Semester

Reading

- Identify the missing perspective and biases in a given source.
- Compare and contrast multiple perspectives or points of view on a given historical event or issue.
- Evaluate different versions of a historical event in different mediums.
- Apply knowledge gained from texts to inform reading of additional texts on the same topic, issue or time period.

Reading

- Evaluate author's word choice and understand that language is used deliberately
- Analyze the use of propaganda techniques and stereotypes
- Synthesize information and ideas from multiple sources
- Apply knowledge gained from texts to inform reading of additional texts on the same topic, issue or time period.

Informative/Explanatory Writing

- Summarize, paraphrase and/or quote information when appropriate
- Create and use outlines to organize information in a logical sequence.
- Gather information from relevant and credible sources, both primary and secondary.
