Dear Colleagues,

Last week, I shared a message from NYC Educators for Palestine about a curriculum share, with those on this email chain, following our participation in an NYCPS session about engaging in difficult conversations. I want to clarify my intent behind sharing the email. I had sought to share an example of materials circulating around the topic. I am not a member of NYC Educators for Palestine and it was not my intent to endorse the group's message or materials, encourage participation in the curriculum share, or promote a particular viewpoint or ideology. I regret that the email was interpreted beyond that intent. The email I forwarded was not an expression of my personal political views and was only meant to share resources I received. It was not my intention to promote a position one way or the other, but my hope that we would engage in thoughtful, and respectful dialogue. I look forward to continuing a productive conversation about this challenging topic.

With Appreciation,

Your Partner in Education and Proud Principal,
