Is your concern that you've heard from colleagues and Syphax? Or is your concern the genocide of Palestinians? I'm confused.

I can be available after school today if that works for you.

Shayma good morning,

Let's talk offline about what needs exist and how best to support staff. As you can imagine, I've already heard from your colleagues in this building and Syphax on your email.

Thanks

Tony

Good morning,

Considering the genocide of over 1 million Palestinians unfolding before our eyes, I have put together some resources you may find helpful to make sense of and talk with students about what's happening in Israel and Palestine, specifically in Gaza. Just yesterday, Israel bombed a hospital, killing over 500 Palestinians. This, on top of the over 1,000 children killed since last Saturday.

A few days ago, the UN warned of mass ethnic cleansing of Palestinians

I hope you will find the following resources to be useful:

- <https://www.zinnedproject.org/news/violence-in-israel-and-gaza/>
- <https://socialjusticebooks.org/booklists/palestine/>
- <https://teachpalestine.org/>
- <https://www.mecaforpeace.org/meca-projects/teach-palestine-project/>
- https://teachmideast.org/resource_guides/the-israeli-palestinian-conflict/

Additionally, I'm wondering if you would be interested in engaging in thoughtful discourse as we continue to learn together. I'm proposing a book club as a start. If you are interested in reading Rashid Khalidi's The Hundred Years' War on Palestine: A History of Settler Colonialism and Resistance, 1917–2017 or any one of these books on this Zinn Project book list, please
