CONCLUSION

The establishment of a Black Girls Group in Marin County has presented an opportunity to empower and uplift Black girls, fostering a sense of belonging, pride, and resilience within the community. By providing mentorship, education, and community engagement opportunities, this initiative has already seen success in creating a supportive network where Black girls can thrive and become leaders of positive change in Marin County and beyond. This past year's BGG seniors have been accepted into some of their top colleges and have already become vital mentors to younger Marin students.
